PCI Design Standard Committee seeks members

The Design Standard Committee 2025 cycle is nearing an end, and PCI is looking for new committee members. This committee and consultants have been vital in developing the Precast Structural Concrete Code, ACI-PCI 319, and the Specification for the Design of Precast Concrete Insulated Wall Panels, ANSI/PCI 150-24.

The committee will be discharged at the end of 2024 and repopulated for the 2031 cycle. As a standards writing body, this committee maintains balance per PCI Standard's developer organization accreditation with American National Standards Institute (ANSI). Membership on this committee requires meeting attendance (both in person and online), active contribution to the development of new design standards, and review of and response to committee ballots for the duration of the six-year code cycle.

The reorganized committee will hold its first meeting of the 2031 cycle on February 4 at the 2025 PCI Convention at the Precast Show in Indianapolis, Ind. To request an application, email standards@pci.org. Applications are due December 20.

Project Precast 2025 gears up for 2025 convention

Next year will mark the seventh anniversary for Project Precast, the PCI Foundation's popular precast concrete design competition for architecture, engineering, and construction management students across the United States.

In February 2025, eight teams, each with four students, will represent eight precast concrete industry companies to compete for cash prizes. The competition will be held February 5–9 at the 2025 PCI Convention at the Precast Show in Indianapolis, Ind.

In 2024, the room filled up early for the crowd of more than 200 to watch the student teams compete on behalf of CEG, Coreslab, Clark Pacific, Finrock, Gate, Metromont, Tindall, and Wells. Sika and Hamilton Form are repeating sponsors of the competition.
